South Shore WMA General Information

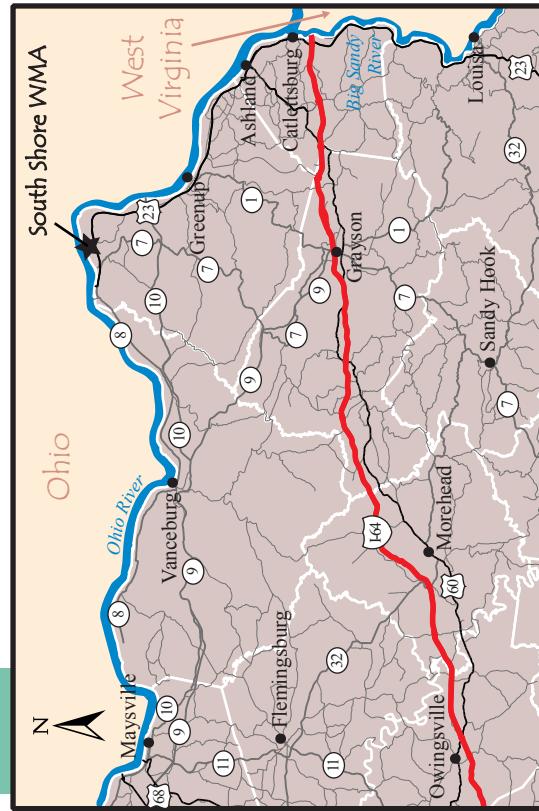

South Shore WMA Information:

The South Shore Wildlife Management Area is located in Greenup Co., along the Ohio River on the eastern edge of the city of South Shore. Originally acquired by the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet as a wetland mitigation site, the property was conveyed to the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources in 2003. The defining feature of the 95-acre WMA are two shallow, seasonal wetlands totaling about 20 acres. For their size, these wetlands typically draw very good numbers of waterfowl and other wetland birds fall through spring. Other portions of the area consist primarily of grassland and old field cover, with some limited agricultural plantings for wildlife. A brushy tree row bisects the center of the area, and wooded cover is also found on the corridor along the Ohio River.
